Jean-Pierre Guillaume is a French orientalist known as Pauthier. He is the author of important writings and studies on the East. Without discussing the greatness of the Mahabharata from where he has extracted this episode of Savitri, Pauthier humbly stresses that it offers the most wonderful manners of a nation, a more complete picture, the largest, and a most wonderful time of the world. He does not hesitate to proclaim that compositions like the Iliad and the Odyssey, Virgil's Aeneid, while admirable as they are, are fading before the great Indian epics like the Pindos and Seven Hills to the Himalayas. Sri Aurobindo, poet of Savitri A Legend and a Symbol, says the following about the tale of Savitri: The tale of Satyavan and Savitri is recited in the Mahabharata as a story of conjugal love conquering death. But this legend is, as shown by many features of the human tale, one of the many symbolic myths of the Vedic cycle. Satyavan is the soul carrying the divine truth of being within itself but descended into the grip...
